Given your situation “fill in the blank with an accident or family situation previously talked about or line of work”, what did you like the most? (ex. Tom, Given your situation with you being in a line of work where you need your hands to make an income and seeing firsthand that accidents can happen with your brother and given your situation of not having a back up plan in place, why would this make sense to you?) That it is paid directly to you? That it covers so much with no limits or just the money back piece?
